

SAP Fiori UX Design and Build Challenge

Submission– EnableUserApp

Story

As a Change Coordinator administering projects is always dynamic. Especially when organizing people for development and test work. The same people that were developing or testing yesterday could be others than the people that punch in the next day.

With a Fiori app, linked to the Development and Quality systems, change Coordinators could quickly enable users to get the job done. Reset their password or set a new one. If they need particular roles or profiles one could simply assign them to the users. You could have a quick view at the end date of their account and prolong this with no pain at all. Maybe check and set some parameters too.

In the traditional way the Change Coordinator should be on premise behind his terminal because Development and Quality systems are not supposed to be exposed to the internet. In the new way of working such boundaries are all gone. Enabling users to start working can be done anywhere and anytime.
